

Keen on Keeneland Race Track

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Thursday, 11 April 2013 12:49 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2013 14:45

While no single race or track is more famous than the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Keeneland Race Track remains the gem of the state.

Keeneland , located in Lexington, seems born from the mind of a novelist: a quintessential English-inspired racing village nestled in the rolling hills of surrounding farms with fences that stretch as far as the eye can see. Stone walls blanketed in ivy give way to the manicured paddock area, where crowds of excited racing fans mill around to view the horses on parade. It really is a beautiful site -- something that instills great pride in every Kentuckian.

Keen on Keeneland Race Track

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Thursday, 11 April 2013 12:49 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2013 14:45

Thursday, 11 April 2013 12:49 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2013 14:45

Thursday, 11 April 2013 12:49 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2013 14:45

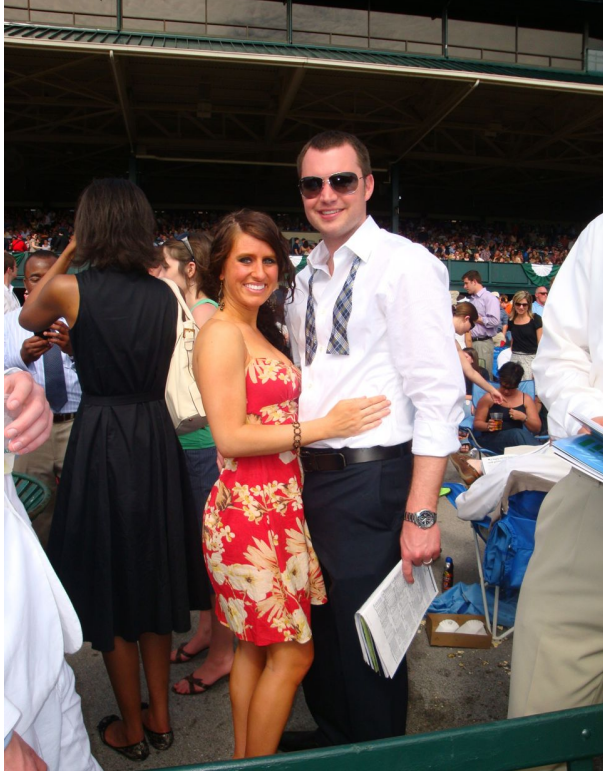

Keen on Keeneland Race Track

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Thursday, 11 April 2013 12:49 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2013 14:45

By Jill Kerr Tepe
A group of people, including a man in a suit and a woman in a red dress, are gathered around a table at a bar or lounge area, possibly at Keeneland Race Track. The man in the suit is holding a red cup, and the woman in the red dress is smiling. Other people are visible in the background, some sitting and some standing.

By Jill Kerr Tepe
A man in a white shirt and tie, wearing sunglasses, is standing next to a woman in a red floral dress. They are both smiling and looking towards the camera. The man is holding a newspaper. They are standing in front of a crowd of people, possibly at a race track.